TRAIL DIFFICULTY RATING

Please note! The trail difficulty rating is based on snow-free, well-maintained trails. Bad weather, residual snow patches, landslides, fog etc. can turn an otherwise moderate trail into a significantly difficult one.

- Red Trails: marked trails that require some alpine hiking experience, a decent level of fitness, and basic hiking equipment; suitable for surefooted and reasonably fit hikers.
- Black Trails: marked trails that require previous alpine hiking experience, a good level of fitness, and basic hiking equipment. Suitable for absolutely surefooted and very fit hikers with a good head for heights.
